PDTrakker

Management tool for educators.
Track your professional development activities - past, current and future.

PDTrakker is a dynamic web-based management tool for educators to track their professional development activities – past, current and future.

- Evaluate the staff development plan program and results based upon measurable criteria
- Officially notify and provide assurances of staff technology competencies to the State Department of Education
- Track staff needing competency assurance before next certificate renewal
- Provide full query capabilities in order to create reports based on various criteria: individual, school, course subject area, contract level, degree level, location, etc.

Adult educators can register for any professional development activity that meets their Professional Development (PD) requirements, access their personal PD Plans and explore what activities work best for their primary assignments. Professional Development Coordinators can access and track the professional activities of teachers and staff.

The catalog lists all professional development activities to help address PD goals, core content requirements, and NCLB, ISTE, Teacher Technology Proviso, and state initiatives. Filters display bar titles in order to sort the items in alphabetical order by code, title, or date. The calendar provides a complete list of PD opportunities by date, week, month, work week. The reports module allows administrators to find and review portfolios by teacher, school, and course.
